BOYS GIVES LIFE TO SAVE ANOTHER.

Anderson, July 8.—A young hero who saved his brother and gave his life for him was Homer Sumter, eleven years old. The eldest brother had fallen into a deep stream and the young boy jumped in immediately and brought the older one safely out, but it was too much for his strength and he was so exhausted that when he reached the bank he could not get out, and he sank before help could get to him. This happened at Petersburg, Va., on Saturday. The body of the young hero was brought to this, his former home for interment.

BACKED BY 67 YEARS OF IMPLEMENT BUILDING

The Emerson-Brantingham Line of Farm Machinery

FOR 67 years an exceptionally high standard of manufacture has been maintained by this company. The great Emerson-Brantingham organization has been the joint work of great inventors and organizers and of progressive modern farmers from the beginning.

The success of Emerson-Brantingham is not to be measured alone by the fact that E-B is a complete line farm machinery. Nor is proof of its movement solely in the 4000 employees and 8 immense plants with their branches. But the seal of great achievement is given this mighty industry by the fact that farmers' needs dominate every plan, every design, every operation of construction, every addition of a new machine. And every one of these implements bears the E-B trade mark backed by E-B guarantee of satisfaction.

Farmers all over the country have learned the value of E-B machinery. They have found every E-B machine to be made by skilled workmen from the best material obtainable. They know quality and dependability are regarded by the Emerson-Brantingham Implement Company as the two most important considerations in making good machinery. Besides buying good machinery farmers appreciate the fact that they can get prompt service. But the basic advantage of the E-B line is the knowledge of how to build machinery. Farm machinery that has been proved and tested in the field by the practical farmers who have founded and continued this business. So when you buy E-B farm implements you are buying no experiments or guess work. You are rather sharing in the ripe experience of 67 years of farming and manufacture. Trust the E-B trade mark. It will pay you in more generous profits.
